Tinley To Sponsor Charity Dance

BIG SURPRISE FEATURE ANNOUNCED BY CHARITY DANCE COMMITTEE

In spite of the secrecy of the Tinley Park Charity Dance Committee, rumors and gossip regarding the benefit affair for the evening of Saturday, December 5th, have forced the Committee "to let the cat out of the bag" in advance of schedule.

The affair will be held in the new Tinley Park School Auditorium, which in itself, is attraction "enuff" to insure success. However, Dame Rumor has it that there are other things in this "Surprise Package".

In order to get the party started off in great heat, there will be a door prize of a ton of coal, Yea Pocahontas.

Who ever heard of a duck waddle in a school house?—well, wait and see.

Can you broadcast as good as an WENR canary? If you can't, don't come, competition for the prize will be too hot for you.

Ever see chicken thieves dance? Rhode Island Red is coming, she's a half back at Miss Cynthia Dobbin's School for Girls.

Did ja ever hear tell of the "La-of his travels thru this mountainous like Old Man River. Grandpa and Grandma should win this one.

Are you a fast hoover? You may be elected for the Dance Marathon. And at 12:30 Midnight—the biggest surprise of all.

A REAL DEPRESSION BREAKFAST TO BE SERVED

And all in the price of admission. Have you ever heard Erickson press the piano? He's a wizard, an orchestra by himself. Hear him while you have a dance.

"This is the best cause for which you were ever asked to enjoy yourself."

A 100 per cent Charity Benefit.

All this is sponsored by the Tinley Park Relief Association, A Community Organization. Every Citizen A Member.

Tinley Lions Club President Speaks on Rambles In Divorceland

"Rambles in Divorceland" was the topic of a very interesting talk given before the Tinley Park Lions Club at their meeting Monday night by A. O. Foskett, president of the club.

Mr. Foskett gave a very graphic sketch of his life. He was born in Illinois, New York in 1871. His native city is the site of two important manufacturing concerns whose products are known nationally. Here the Remington Gun Works are located, also the Remington Typewriter Company.

Mr. Foskett came west in the Chicago World's Fair year and was attracted by the Fair. At the close of the Fair he went west and located in Nevada. Here in 1910 he was appointed census taker in Churchill County, in Nevada. His territory covered an area of 35 miles wide and 65 miles long. He found slightly over 300 inhabitants in that territory.

He gave a very interesting account of his travels thru this mountainous country in his search for prospectors and miners cabins to take the census. He described much of the country as a barren waste, alkali and sand stretching for miles with an occasional horn toad and a desert lizard visible here and there. He described the country as being rugged and beautiful and said that one peculiarity of Nevada is that the waters of the rivers of the state all flow into the state, but not out. Irrigation has made a big change in the country tho and converted the non productive land into real crop producing soil.

He also gave a highly interesting sidelight on the politicians and politics of that country and declared that whiskey and cigars were vote producers at one time.

Mr. Foskett held the office of secretary of a water association and was secretary of a fair while residing in Nevada which he so aptly termed "Divorceland" on account of the divorce mill at Reno.

Legion To Hold New Year's Party

A New Year's party is to be held in the Tinley Park Legion Hall on December 31st. A four piece orchestra will furnish the music for the evening. A fine banquet supper will be served at 11:30 p. m. Favors will be furnished and a good time is in store for those who attend. The attendance will be limited to seventy-five couple and all reservations must be in by December 15th. Persons desiring reservations get in touch with Ray Brennan at Orland phone 136 M2 or Lester Stoltenberg, phone Tinley Park 211.

Tinley Lions Ask Protection For Hen Pheasants

The Tinley Park Lions Club has sponsored a petition which has been signed by a large number of citizens of this section, petitioning the legislature for protection on hen pheasants. The petition which has been turned over to Senator Arthur A. Huebsch of this district reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Tinley Park and vicinity, do respectfully petition the Illinois Legislature to be called into special session in November of this year, to consider and enact such proper law or amendment to present laws which will insure proper protection to that species of game known as hen pheasants and which are now without protection owing to a technical error of the present game laws."

Magician Coming To Orland Dec. 4th

An event of outstanding importance will take place at the Orland Park M. E. church on Friday, December 4th at 8 p. m. Carlton King the well known European magician and wonder worker will present his full evening of magical entertainment, for the benefit of the Community Center and Boys and Girls Camp.

Mr. King is sometimes known as the "Globe Trotting Magician", having given his unique performance in many countries throughout the world. He will present magic of the Hindoo Fakers, also Chinese and Japanese magic. He will be assisted by Miss Dorothy Gwennette, known as the "Girl with the X-ray eyes". She will also give a remarkable demonstration of telepathic control.

Mr. King has performed before many of the crowned heads of Europe and many great audiences throughout the United States. The Orland M. E. is very fortunate in being able to present his entertainment.

Tinley Lions Club Donates $50 To Local Charities

The Tinley Park Relief Fund has been swelled by an additional $50, a gift from the Tinley Park Lions Club. The Relief Committee is indeed very grateful to the Lions Club for this fine donation.

Wants Historical Prints, Relics, Etc.

To the Editor of the Mokena Paper: Can you help the cause of the Will County Historical Society by giving us some publicity in this week's edition of your paper?

We are anxious to get the county united in the movement of preserving the history of the county. We hope we can all get together once a month and live in the past for an evening.

Our next meeting will be held on November 30th at 8 p. m., in the Joliet Library when there will be an exhibit of old prints, pictures, wood cuts, lithographs, etc. A gallery talk will be given by Adele Fay Williams. As this is a loan exhibit (loaned for the evening of course) we are in hopes that people of your community will come in with contributions which the public may enjoy.

For further information write to Florence Lynk, Manhattan or talk to Mrs. Barrickman at the Joliet Library. There will be announcements in the Joliet paper.

S. W. Chamber of Commerce Election Dec. 12 at Forrest

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce will be held in connection with the December business meeting to be held at Forrest on December 10. The last meeting was held at Taylorville and was well attended. Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park, president of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce attended this gathering.

Sentiment for the paving of the Southwest highway from Marley south for forty miles to connect up with the St. Louis route, is steadily gaining in favor with the various members of the Illinois legislature.

Orland Farmers Sign Up For The Burns Service

The farmers of Orland township are becoming greatly interested in the protection offered by the Wm. Burns Detective Bureau of Chicago against chicken thieves and in the special insurance the company pays on poultry losses. This company has been of much help to the farmers of Frankfort and Green Garden townships in bringing chicken thieves to justice.

Since a bold attempt was made to steal chickens on the farm of Geo. Keuch in Orland township at seven o'clock in the evening about a week ago, many of the farmers of that township are now signing up for membership in the Burns Service. Christ Sangmeister of Green Garden is the organizer for this section and has been making a thoro canvass of Orland township for members. Every farmer should be a member in a long established service as offered by the Burns people who have an excellent reputation of fair dealing and prompt payments in case of loss.

Farmers in Frankfort, Green Garden, Rich, Bremen and Monee townships have joined this service.

Orland Electrical Dealer Sponsors Christmas Party

Invitations have been issued by Clarence E. Beagley of Orland Park to over 500 patrons and friends to attend his annual Christmas party to be held at his electrical store in Orland Park on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, December 5th.

Continuous entertainment from noon until midnight will be furnished by the Jack Danger Revue with Jack Danger as master of ceremonies. The Revue will consist of two comedy clowns and a lady pianist.

There will be singing, talking, tap dancing, juggling, music, comedy, etc. Harry Ferris, the ventriloquist will be present with his boy friend, his magic and best of all his Punch and Judy show. Don't fail to come.

Award Contract For Paving Route To Palos Park

The state highway department at Springfield has awarded the contract for 6.49 miles of paving on route 52 between Palos Park and Kedzie avenue, west of Blue Island.

The award was made to the Chicago Heights Coal Company for $257,775. The project was included in contracts awarded for 30.29 miles of pavement, which will cost $340,090.

Mokena P. T. A.

The November meeting of the Mokena P. T. A. was held Nov. 24th with 17 members present. The picture was again awarded to the room of Miss Doig. Mrs. A. Coler was elected treasurer so all dues can be paid directly to her. A card and bunco party will be given in the school gym on Wednesday, December 2nd at 8 p. m. Refreshments will be served.

New Lenox Relief Drive Opened With Bundle Party

The Relief Organization sponsored a very successful bundle and pound party at the New Lenox School Auditorium Tuesday night at which clothes and food was donated for the needy in New Lenox township, many of whom are children.

Elmore Social Service Club Party Big Success

The bunco and card party which was sponsored by the Elmore Social Service Club at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park last Friday night, drew the largest crowd ever seen in Tinley Park at a like event, 75 tables playing and over 300 players took part. Over 125 prizes were awarded. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schultz secured 70 per cent of the prizes that were awarded, it is reported. The entire proceeds will be used for relief work.

Mokena Board To Demand Action On Wolf Road

Rumor has it that there is something stirring in Will County road building circles regarding the completion of the hookup of Wolf Road with the Lincoln Highway south of Mokena. It is understood that this matter was the subject of discussion of the Will County bond issue committee last Friday morning and that the matter is to be given definite attention this week.

It is further reported that even the Mokena village board is waking up and proposes to pass a resolution addressed to the Will County road officials demanding the early completion of this hookup. It is understood that whatever factions in Mokena have been divided on this matter heretofore, are now in close harmony on this particular subject and it looks as tho we were going to get some where. Let us hope this is not another will-o-the-wisp as we have seen before.

Court Action Hinted In Cemetery Sale of Lot at Mokena

Court action is being threatened by Mrs. C. Bauch Kriemann of Downers Grove as the result of the sale of a lot in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena to the Getz family at the time of the death of Mr. Getz a few months ago.

The lot in question was sold to the St. John Cemetery Association by Jacob Bauch of Frankfort and the Cemetery Association in turn sold it to the Getz family.

Now Mrs. Kriemann claims that the lot belongs to her and threatens immediate court action to recover the lot.

Frankfort Defeats Orland

The fast basketball teams of Frankfort and of Orland Park played at the Frankfort Hall last Friday night, November 20th. The Frankfort team defeated the visitors by a score of 24 to 16. The score was very close during the first half and third quarter of the game.

The second team of Frankfort and of Orland Park also played and Frankfort again was the victor with a score of 26 to 3.

Mokena Community Band Makes Premier Appearance At Play

Petitions Circulated For Annexation of School District 160

The matter of annexing school District No. 160 north of Mokena to District 159 the Mokena district, is again engaging the attention and interest of the people of the Mokena school district.

The school house in school District No. 160 has been closed for years and at present the windows are broken and the door is open most of the time. The building has not been in use for years.

The pupils of that district are being sent to the Mokena school and their tuition is being paid by their district.

Within the last few weeks an investigation has been on foot as to the cost per pupil per year for education in the Mokena school. It is shown that it costs the taxpayers of school District 159, $86.02 per pupil in the grade school per year.

The investigation further shows that the pupils of school District No. 160 north of Mokena pay the Mokena school district only $70 per pupil per year. That hardly appears to be fair in the eyes of the taxpayers of school District No. 159.

Inasmuch as the laws of the state of Illinois require that when any district fails to maintain a public school for at least two years, they shall annex their district to the district to which their pupils have been or are being sent, the taxpayers of District 159 are now demanding that the territory of school District 160 be annexed to the Mokena school district in order that they shall be equally taxed with the Mokena district. The pupils of District No. 160 are getting all the advantages of a modern grade school which they could never receive in a one room country school, at a less rate than the pupils residing in the Mokena school district.

The unfairness of this situation has aroused much interest locally and a number of petitions are being circulated for signatures petitioning the township school trustees to have District No. 160 annexed with the District No. 160 annexed with the

One of the taxpayers in District 159 in commenting on the matter summed it up in this way:

"I do not, nor do you, nor does any taxpayer, object to paying school taxes; we of Mokena, enjoying the new school building, and in respect of our feelings as to the cost of it, know that it is not detrimental to the community; it must be paid for. There are $29,000 in bonds yet to be paid. Shall we default? No. Let us force, if necessary, District No. 160 to pay their rightful share of our expenses, and we shall have enough to pay those bonds from our taxes."

TINLEY SCHOOL BOARD SPONSORS BUNCO PARTY

The Tinley Park school board and committee will sponsor a bunco at the new Tinley Park school auditorium Friday night of this week at 8 p. m. Everyone is invited.

The Mokena Community Band under the direction of Don C. Oall, Jr., of Mokena made its premier appearance before the public Tuesday evening at the comedy play "The Galloping Princess" staged by the students of the Mokena High school.

Mr. Hall is an old timer in the line of band music, having successfully conducted a 20 piece band for many years while engaged in the show business and visited nearly all the principal cities of the United States during that time. He is a member of the News-Bulletin staff.

The members of the band are to be congratulated on their excellent music and they certainly made a big hit. This band will be a big asset to Mokena. It has been in the process of organization for several months. Many of the band members are old time players of former Mokena bands.

The personnel of the band was augmented by the appearance of Mr. Hall's brother, Walter R. Hall and his friend Oscar G. Hagen, the latter being official licensed sports announcer, both of Milwaukee who drove by auto to take part in the premier appearance of the band.

The members of the Mokena Community Band taking part are:

Clyde Knudson, Wanda Hall, Leon Kolber, Everett Cooper, L. E. Cooke, Adeline Semmler, Alva Hall, Mrs. Don Hall, Jr., and Carlos Hall.

The play was much enjoyed and all the members of the cast did full justice to their parts. The leading role "The Galloping Princess" was played by Miss Myra Kolber par excellence. The members of the cast were as follows:

Richard Devoe, M. Roberts, Howard Preston, W. Muehler, Nicky Boggs, G. Knakmuns, Marx Invadane, W. Cappel, Wilson, E. Lauer, Holbrook, E. McGovney, Tess Boggs, Myra Kolber, Mrs. O'Brien, A. Horras, Aunt Margot, V. Walston, Nora Murphy, Marie Tierney, Jacqueline, H. Cappel, Mrs. Page, B. Weedon. The play was directed by Miss Baker.

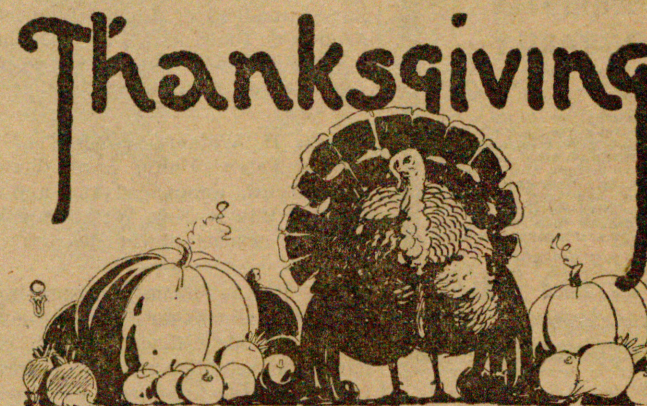

Specialties were offered by the Mokena Community Band, Mokena High School Boys and Girls Glee Clubs.

Dorothy Eiler made a big hit in acrobatic and tap dancing specialties and received a big hand. Miss Doig was the pianist.

The furniture used in the play was furnished by the Fitzgerald Furniture Co., of Joliet and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cappel of Mokena.

Rooster in "Pants"

Jeremiah, pet rooster belonging to Mrs. J. E. Winkley, of Seattle, Wash., was hit in the neck by an arrow shot by a youngster. He seemed to be dead, so his owner began to dry pick him. She had removed all his tail feathers when he came back to life with a squawk and staggered into the yard. His neck healed and Mrs. Winkley felt there was only one thing to do for poor, nude Jeremiah. She made him a pair of pants.

Practice of Medicine

Swell Patient—Don't you think I have traumatic neurosis, doctor? Fashionable Medico—Not yet, but I'll give you a list of the symptoms and you can go home and start working on them.

John's Mother Praises Doctor

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup clears the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Western mothers praise it. Mrs. Joseph W. Hill, 4306 Bedford Ave., Omaha, Nebraska, says: "I'll never forget the doctor who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his weak bowels. That was when he was just a baby. He suffered a good deal before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup boy."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary Illinois Trade Association

The State Natural History survey announced that the stock of fish in Illinois streams has been severely depleted as a result of the drought of 1930 and 1929. Excessive heat also acted as a powerful destructive agent. Low water, favorable to commercial fishing, aided in taking 15,000,000 pounds of carp and buffalo from the Illinois river last year.

James Simpson, Jr., candidate for congress from Lake county, sustained a broken leg when one of his riding horses stumbled in hurdling a ditch and rolled on him.

Dr. Sam W. Latham, mayor of Eldorado and a former state senator, died at his home in Eldorado.

The unusually warm fall is reflected in the reports of raspberry and blackberry vines in fruit and the putting out of new leaves by grapevines.

In the federal court at Peoria, on application of the United States attorney, Judge Louis Fitzhenry forfeited to the government two tracts of farm land upon which illicit stills were permitted by the owners of the lands. This was done by use of an old statute that has seldom been used.

Illinois auto license plates for 1932 will be placed in the mails before the Christmas mailing rush, according to plans revealed by the office of Secretary of State William J. Stratton. First application blanks for the new plates were mailed on November 7. Acceptance of remittance for 1932 plates began on November 9.

Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, told state food inspectors that the enforcement of the wood alcohol law is a timely phase for the food inspection forces to stress. He said that their duties, primarily, are to acquaint all who deal in this commodity with the provisions of the act in order that there may be no lack of precautionary measures. Such a lack might lead to fatalities or to blindness.

During the month of November, Illinois' highway department will break all previous records for speed by taking bids on an estimated total of $14,943,705 worth of work in a single thirty-day period. The lettings embrace a total of 294.34 miles of paving, 90.04 miles of grading, and a number of bridge sections. The 90.04 miles of grading and 222.87 miles of paving are in the down-state area.

The International Livestock, Hay, and Grain show will be held at Chicago, November 28 to December 5. Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, stated in a letter that the grain producers of Illinois, particularly, can benefit by the opportunity the exposition offers. Its educational advantages, and the splendid entertainment that it offers undoubtedly merit the patronage of all who can attend.

The establishment of an occupational disease clinic at the Research and Educational hospital, operated jointly by the University of Illinois and the state department of public welfare was announced. This new service to labor and industry was approved by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson as in line with his policy of extending the benefits of the state's medical and public welfare services to those who are in need of them. The work of the clinic, according to the announced plans, will be strictly the diagnosis of ailments attributed to conditions that exist in mines, factories, and other industrial surroundings.

A tentative list of books to be read by public school teachers was drafted at a meeting of the State Teachers Reading circle board at the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair. At a December meeting the list will be reduced to four subjects for required study.

John H. Walker, president of the Illinois district United Mine Workers of America, announced the appointment of Will R. Key, West Frankfort, as chief counsel of the district.

The Illinois commerce commission has ruled that before applications of the Panhandle Illinois Pipeline company for establishment of tentative rates for natural gas service in Springfield, Peoria, and Champaign, will be considered, the company must seek approval of its contracts with all cities, companies, or individuals for use of the gas in Illinois.

Fire of undetermined origin caused $150,000 damage to the building and stock of the O'Brien-Jobst men's clothing store in Peoria. Carl J. Jobst, Republican representative for the Eighteenth district, is one of the proprietors.

Ivan Elliott, state commander of the American Legion, in an address advocated the payment of the soldiers' bonus in full at once in order to release a large sum of money as a means towards ending the economic depression.

On November 5, fire believed caused from defective electrical wiring, damaged one of the dining rooms of the Anna state hospital for the insane to the amount of $5,000.

In a special report to Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, it was revealed that Illinois farmers who produce fruit and vegetables for market, obtained 50 per cent more state inspection service this season than ever before. The report revealed that during the four harvest months since July 1, 1,575 cars of perishable commodities have moved to market with official certificates of grade and quality.

According to a pamphlet published by Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keeln, commanding officer of the Thirty-third division and attached troops, the Illinois National Guard has reached a position where it can mobilize rapidly for active duty and appear quickly at any scene of disorder in the state.

At the convention of the Illinois State School Board association which closed on November 6, Frank J. Petru, Cicero, was re-elected president, and L. L. Tuley, Wood River, was re-elected vice president. The convention adopted a resolution encouraging the consolidation of small districts and the adoption of legislation to make consolidations easier.

It has been announced that the organization of the National Corn Credits corporation had been virtually completed and that loans to midwest corn farmers probably will be available within thirty days. The funds will be handled through the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis.

"Library Laws, 1931," has just been published by the library extension division, Springfield. It contains all laws pertaining to libraries in Illinois, including those amendments passed at the last session of the legislature, and gives the correct procedure in establishing and maintaining libraries in Illinois. Anyone interested in the subject of library laws may obtain a copy of this booklet on request to Miss Anna May Price, superintendent, library extension division, Springfield. This division is under direct supervision of William J. Stratton, secretary of state.

On November 2, Judge Louis Fitzhenry began a hearing of the Pevely Dairy case concerning the milk war in southern Illinois.

Basing his opinion on a survey which he made for the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, Jacob Crane, Jr., state and municipal plan expert, recently predicted that Illinois would have a population of 12,600,000 in 1931. The survey showed that the state's population will increase about 1,000,000 every ten years.

Civil service examinations for eleven classes of state employment will be held December 1. Junior architectural draftsman, senior architectural draftsman, industrial foreman (for institution shops), junior teacher (school for the deaf), janitress, assistant cook, assistant chief nurse, commercial teacher, court reporter, and university stenographer examinations will be held. Application blanks are obtainable from the office of the civil service commission at Springfield.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled that a county treasurer is without authority to pay for publication of the assessment list out of the earnings of his office. Attorney General Carlstrom ruled that payment shall be made out of the county treasury.

William J. Stratton, secretary of state, has announced that he has inaugurated a new system in connection with the distribution of the 1932 auto license plates. The identification card under the new system will be a photostatic copy of the original application, containing a facsimile of the owner's signature. It is stated that this will completely eliminate errors in transcription, will serve as a positive identification of the owner of the car, and assist materially in the recovery of stolen automobiles. The new plan will enable the department to give 72-hour service in the mailing of license plates. Illinois has the distinction of being the first state in the Union to adopt this scientific method.

The bovine tuberculosis situation in the Chicago milk area has improved 1.54 per cent during the last three months. Counties that averaged 300 diseased cattle to each 10,000 tested during the past fiscal year, now report only 146 reactors for each 10,000 tests. D. W. Robison, superintendent of animal industry in the agricultural department, considers the reduction in infection indicative of satisfactory progress.

According to a statement of State Auditor Oscar Nelson, there is much evidence of business improvement. One of the most encouraging features is an increase of bank deposits in many localities.

In an address, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson stated that in the last two years the state of Illinois has spent more than $10,000,000 on new buildings at state institutions and that a good-sized share of this was expended on work affecting war veterans or their dependents.

POULTRY

WINTER SUNSHINE GOOD FOR POULTRY

Ultra-Violet Rays Needed by Flock.

So much evidence has been accumulated about the value of winter sunshine in egg production that it cannot be ignored by poultry raisers who want to get profitable results.

It has been shown that ultra-violet rays are a powerful factor in increasing egg production, hatchability and fertility, as well as in maintaining healthful conditions.

Ultra-violet rays promote bone and body growth, and building vitamin D. During the winter months, when poultry is confined, ordinary glass and soiled cloth curtains bar them out and some means must be employed to make them available.

You need good housing and good management to get best results. Published data by such representative bodies as Wisconsin experiment station, University of Arkansas; Ohio experiment station and others have shown the effect of ultra-violet rays during the winter months. Records at egg-laying contests (notably the Vine-land egg-laying contest) also give practical proof of the egg-producing value of ultra-violet rays.

Poultry needs winter sunshine. Layers must get ultra-violet radiation or its equivalent. This is also true of chicks. The wise poultry raiser will make sure his house is properly constructed this winter and next spring. —Ohio Farmer.

Size of Eggs Can Be Influenced by Feeding

Egg size is influenced by breeding and also by feeding. It is as natural for some hens to lay large eggs as it is for some cows to give a heavy flow of milk. It is important to select eggs of the desired size when saving for incubation, because the size of egg laid, to some extent, is inherited by the offspring. However, it is possible to influence the size of eggs to a considerable extent through proper feeding and a proper supply of minerals necessary for egg shell.

A ration of grain alone or even with milk will probably not give best results so far as egg size is concerned. A balanced ration carrying not less than 3 per cent of bone meal and possibly 1 or 2 per cent calcium carbonate in some form, like crushed limestone or calcite, is considered desirable for best eggs.

Plan Now to Increase Production of Eggs

One of the imperative needs of the poultry industry is to increase the consumption of eggs, said Reese Hicks of the International Baby Chick association, in addressing the American Institute of Co-operation at Manhattan, Kan. Other foods are giving eggs a battle for a place on the breakfast table, and according to Mr. Hicks, this is what can be done about it.

The first step toward increasing egg consumption is for producers to supply high quality eggs. The second step is in standardizing the product so that the public will know what it is buying. The third step is for co-operatives to join hands with other agencies in the poultry industry to educate the public as to the value of eggs. —Nebraska Farmer.

Poultry Facts

Oat hulls are not harmful to chicks if ground fine enough.

Among the incurable poultry diseases are chronic coccidiosis, tuberculosis, bacillary white diarrhea, fowl cholera, fowl typhoid and blackhead. Serious cases of chicken pox and roup might also be included.

The poultryman's biggest asset right now is the flock of new pullets that are being developed for next winter's laying flock, and whatever he can do to protect that flock so these birds will continue to lay, worth real money to him.

Culling a flock is one of the important things which is most commonly neglected. There is also a neglect to procure and keep pure-bred chickens. Vermin are commonly found in poultry houses.

Several poultry diseases are quite similar in many external symptoms. One or two additional symptoms usually, to the experienced, determine the accuracy of the superficial diagnosis. Post mortems prove the superficial diagnosis and therein lies experience.

Either whole oats or hulled oats may be used in a grain ration that is fed to chickens. However, hulled oats makes a better feed because a large part of the fiber is removed and the birds will, therefore, get a bigger percentage of grain.

Keep records of the number of eggs received each day and how they are disposed of. An account book will tell where the money goes and where the money comes from and will enable one to make economies on the one side and increase income on the other.

Lesson for November 29

PAUL'S LETTER TO PHILEMON

GOLDEN TEXT—There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

LESSON TEXT—Philemon.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Treat a Servant.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Servant Becomes a Brother.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Slave Made a Brother.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ Transforming Social Relationships.

This letter is a private one. Philemon was a member of the church at Colosse. Onesimus, his slave, wronged him, and fled to Rome. At Rome he came under Paul's influence and was converted. Paul sent Onesimus back to Philemon with this letter—one of the most tactful, tender, and beautiful letters ever written, and the first anti-slavery petition ever penned.

I. His Salutation (vv. 1-3).

In salutation he refers to himself as a prisoner and links Philemon to himself as a fellow laborer in the gospel, having as his special aim to touch Philemon's heart. He makes mention of Apphia, Philemon's wife, and Archippus, the son, who had already enlisted as a fellow soldier.

II. Philemon's Reputation (vv. 4-7).

Paul paid a fine tribute to Philemon's character, reminding him that he never prayed without bearing him up before God.

1. His faith and love toward the Lord and all saints (v. 5). It was Paul's hope and desire that Philemon's faith might bear fruit in Jesus Christ. With such an approach, the way was open to Philemon's heart.

2. His ministry to the saints (v. 7). Philemon was most generous in his ministry to the poor saints.

III. Paul's Request (vv. 8-16).

He requests Philemon to receive back Onesimus, the runaway slave, as a brother in Christ. Note the incomparable delicacy and courtesy with which Paul approaches Philemon.

1. He beseeches instead of commands (vv. 8-10). Though conscious of his right to enjoin, he pleads as the prisoner of Jesus Christ for love's sake.

2. He makes his plea on the grounds of grace (vv. 11-14). He admits that Onesimus has been unprofitable, has forfeited all claim upon Philemon, and that on grounds of justice his plea might well be rejected and yet because Onesimus was begotten in his bonds (v. 10), was in a real sense a part of his own suffering nature (v. 12), he ventures to suggest that he should be accepted. Though Onesimus hitherto has been unprofitable to his master, he is now profitable to both Paul and Philemon.

3. Paul desired that Onesimus be received back, not as a slave, but as a brother in Christ (vv. 15, 16). Here is the real fugitive slave law. Paul never attacked slavery, but emphasized principles which destroyed it. Christianity changes the whole face of human society. The wise thing to do is to get men and women regenerated and thus transform society instead of seeking change by revolution. Social wrongs can permanently be removed by the creation of a brotherhood which can be realized only by faith in Jesus Christ. Faith in Jesus Christ brings the individual into connection with the source of life. In Paul's request for Onesimus you can hear the pleadings of Christ for sinners. All men have gone astray and have become unprofitable. Though possessing no merit, he has made us profitable. We have been begotten in his bonds. Through his passion, agony of heart, we shall be changed. We can see and hear him now pleading our cause before God's throne for love's sake.

IV. The Basis upon Which Onesimus Is to Be Received (vv. 17-21).

The debt of guilty Onesimus is to be put to the account of Paul, and the merit of Paul is to be put to the account of Onesimus. This is a fine illustration of the atonement of Christ. Whatever wrongs we have committed, debts incurred, all our shortcomings are debited to him. Jesus Christ, on behalf of all mankind, has said to God, "Put that to my account. I have written with my pierced hand, I will repay." Onesimus was taken back, not as a runaway slave, but as a beloved brother in Christ.

V. Paul Requests Lodging (vv. 22-25).

He expected a speedy release from imprisonment and purposed to sojourn with Philemon. In all probability this was realized. What a welcome he must have received! Jesus Christ is saying to everyone of his redeemed ones, "Prepare me a lodging."

Yesterday, Today

As for the past, let it sleep if it can. "Sleep on now and take your rest," is the gentle voice of Jesus as to the past. "Rise, let us be going, to he that betrayeth me is at hand," is the next sentence. The past is past. Let that sleep if it can. But there is a future task right now to be done. Don't sleep over that.

Necessary

Before you can come into communion with him you must come into covenant with him.—Matthew Henry.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water neutralizes instantly many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go, get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

What About the Nose Ring?

Customer—I want to buy a diamond ring.

Salesman—Yes, sir. Allow me to show you our combination sets of three pieces—engagement, wedding and teething rings. The very latest thing out, sir.

Frank and truthful people are a nuisance if you are not perfect.

An onion a day is altogether too continuous.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

—With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Genuine Castoria always has the name:

The Orland Park football team in their indoor game with the 124th artillery team in the latter's armory in Chicago, Sunday afternoon, was defeated with a score of 7 to 0.

The hobo party held at the M. E. church parlors Friday night was a very merry affair and was much enjoyed by all those who participated in it. About 100 guests attended the affair. The guests came attired as hobos and those who were not thus garbed had their faces blackened and had to pay a fine.

The girl hobos were segregated in a "pen" and the male hobos were given a fishing pole and had to fish out their partners and they were sent to homes in the vicinity of the church for their "handouts". At one place they were given a pickle, at another, olives and at still another they received sandwiches, cakes, etc. following which they returned to the church parlors where coffee was served and here they ate their lunch.

After the eats the hobos lined up before the judges stand to receive their awards. Ralph Agate was declared the best represented gentleman "hobo" and Mrs. Mable Beagley carried off the honors of being the best represented lady "hobo". Local talent furnished the entertainment part of the party.

The new mayor Wm. Kollman met in his first official session with the village board Monday night.

Wm. Junker is having a new two story dwelling erected on his farm on 143rd street west of Orland.

A good sized company of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Betsy Austin Wednesday night of last week to celebrate her 86th birthday. Mrs. Austin is in good health and very active for one of her advanced age.

The P. T. A. card and bunco party held Wednesday night was a very successful affair.

John Helenhouse who has been ill for sometime, was able to resume his barbershop work the past week and his many friends are glad to see him back on the job again.

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 21 cars was 2.284 cents a mile — less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

A Slant on the Illinois State Tax Commission

Senator Earl B. Searcy today astounded the upper house in the special tax session called by Governor Emmerson by a series of remarkable revelations concerning the tax situation in Cook County.

Placing a wholly new construction upon the Revenue Relief Special Session, Senator Searcy declared that the time has come when it is imperative that the Relief of Cook County be recognized as of itself incidental; that the real question at issue is the welfare and solvency of the State of Illinois.

"Solution of the tax problem of Cook County is not sought merely for the benefit of that county," declared Senator Searcy. "In all friendliness to Cook County I declare that relief for her people is of secondary importance to the safety and honor of the State of Illinois, which in this crisis can be effected only by relieving the plight of Cook County."

Senator Searcy read three statements, each derived from official records. The first statement shows that at the present time Cook County owes the State Treasury the sum of $28,000,000; that in the near future the 1931 taxes will be due, increasing the above amount by approximately $16,000,000, making a gross total of $44,000,000.

"Unless adequate provisions are made for revenue from Cook County now," said Senator Searcy, "the State of Illinois will be reduced to dire straits, and be faced with bond defaults, the serious impairment of governmental service, and possibly even debt repudiation."

Continuing with the second statement, Senator Searcy showed that on the basis of reliable estimates by Federal Income Tax officials, Cook County paid $194,000,000 of the $223,000,000 Federal Income taxes for the State of Illinois in 1929, more than 87 percent of the total.

"We have reached a point where income must be taken as a measure of taxation," said Senator Searcy. "At the present time Cook County is supposed to contribute approximately half of the cost of state operation. On the basis of Federal Income tax payments, Cook County should pay 87 percent of the cost."

"Yet as matters now stand, when the State is presumed to receive one-half of its revenue from Cook County, from general property tax, that county is in near arrears to the extent of approximately $44,000,000. And the people of Cook County are suffering from the same defect that causes this unpaid debt to the state."

Senator Searcy then presented a third statement, based upon the official records of the State Tax Commission. This Statement clearly indicates that less than one-third of the taxable wealth of Cook County is placed upon the assessment rolls.

Proceeding, the statement shows that through failure to assess personal property in Cook County, every other county in the state is penalized and forced to pay an unjust excess to a total of more than $5,000,000 annually. And for the same reason, thousands of people in Cook County are suffering hardship and even privation.

"It is obvious," said Senator Searcy, "that the maladministration of the tax machinery of Cook County has caused perilously close approach to insolvency - actual technical bankruptcy - of Cook County's governmental agencies, accompanied by acute distress and grief to tens of thousands of her citizens."

"Next - and more desperately serious in its threatened consequences, there is now a likelihood - a certainty unless vigorous steps are taken by this special session - of involving every county in the state and every citizen in the debacle."

"Not since the Civil War have we faced a crisis so serious or a problem so grave. Year after year we of the Illinois Legislature have supported the made-to-order programs of the self constituted leadership of Cook County, which now culminate in threatened disaster without comparison in the history of the state.

"Now the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives must assume the responsibility of repairing the damage already done and safeguarding the future. Obviously it is going to be an unpleasant task, and if a remedy is provided adequate to the needs, it will be unpopular."

"But we are the elected representatives of the people. Our responsibility is to the state. Cook County must have relief, but that relief must be subordinate and incidental to the safeguarding of the interests of the State of Illinois."

"Expenses must be curtailed. Revenue sources must be found to make certain the payments of accumulated obligations without default and sufficient to guarantee the preservation of our institutions."

"The revenue provisions of our State Constitution are antiquated. But it is our Constitution, and provisions must be made for raising revenue under existing constitutional provisions."

"If this means a state income tax let it be done. If it means a sales tax, very well. And if it means the faithful administration of constitutional provisions in the taxation of personal property, then personal property must be compelled to pay taxes."

A tabulated report by counties of the state and by districts, shows that Will County has paid an excess of $144,058.00 in state tax and the 41st senatorial district has paid an excess of $260,382.00 in state taxes.

The First U. S. Thanksgiving Proclamation

The custom of the President of the United States issuing annually a Thanksgiving Proclamation can be traced back to the time when George Washington was at the helm of the nation's affairs. On November 26, (the same day on which Thanksgiving falls this year) 1789, President Washington proclaimed for the first time a national day of Thanksgiving thereby setting a precedent for all future Presidents.

Celebration of Thanksgiving Day in America, we are informed by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, can be traced back to the earliest days of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. From there the custom spread to all parts of the United States.

Washington's first national Thanksgiving Proclamation met with some objections. When Elias Boudinot, on September 25, 1789, introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives, "That a joint committee of both Houses be directed to wait upon the President of the United States, to request that he would recommend to the people of the United States, a day of public Thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging and grateful hearts, the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity to establish a Constitution of government for their safety and happiness," it met with protest from some of the members.

Representative Thomas Tudor Tucker, of South Carolina, argued that it was not the business of Congress to ask for a national day of Thanksgiving.

Representative Aedamur Burke, of the same state, thought we should not mimic Europe, "where they made a mockery of thanksgiving."

The objections were soon overruled and a joint committee, made up of Senators Ralph Izard of South Carolina and William S. Johnson of Connecticut, and Representatives Elias Boudinot of New Jersey, Roger Sherman of Connecticut and Peter Sylvester of New York, waited on the President with its request.

President Washington complied and issued his proclamation on October 3, 1789, calling for a national day of Thanksgiving on November 26.

The original proclamation of Thanksgiving reads as follows:

"By the President of the United States of America.

"Whereas it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor - and Whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint committee requested me to recommend to the People of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness."

"Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted

FRANKFORT

Mrs. George Elsner returned home from the Silver Cross hospital where she underwent an operation two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Minger spent a few days the past week with Mrs. Elizabeth Harnack and family in Green Garden.

The Woodmen of Frankfort Camp gave an oyster supper last Tuesday night at the Frankfort hall. Due to the rainy night, there were not many present.

Louie Emily and Mrs. Welsh of Joliet were recently married. Mr. Emily is the pumper here for the E. J. & E. railroad. They will reside in dwelling near the J.

The St. Peter Evangelical church are planning to start an orchestra. A meeting was held Thursday night to consider the project.

Mrs. Peter Folkers was hostess to the Community club in her home on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Albert Minger and Mrs. George McGovney both of Joliet, were the out of town guests.

The Ladies Aid Society of the St. Peter Evangelical church met Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Frank Marti; treasurer, Mrs. George Bettenhausen.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhausen celebrated their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary last Thursday night in the former Kohlhausen store building. About thirty relatives and friends were present. The diversion of the evening was progressive bunco played at eight tables. High score was won by Henry Deist and Mrs. Wm. Lankenau and low score by Joseph Andres and Marjorie Bauch.

Mr. and Mrs. Kohlhausen were presented with a purse of money.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andres, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Funk of Tinley Park, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bauch and daughter Marjorie, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bettenhausen and sons, Earl and William, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deist, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Geuther, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Sippel, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Fink, Mr. and Mrs. George Mager and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pyle, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lankenau, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Folkers, Conrad and Emma Wilson, all of Frankfort and Miss Eloise F. Kohlhausen of Harvey.

Word was received here Monday of the death of Ernest Miller in Chicago. The funeral was held there on Tuesday afternoon. The Miller's resided here before moving to Chicago and are well known here and at one time owned the Hunt house occupied at present by Arthur Eisenbrandt and family.

THE STORY

Six bandits board the steamer, Midnight Sun, tied to the bank of the Mackenzie, hold up Father Claverly and other passengers, kill Jimmy Montgomery, formerly of the Mounted, and get away with gold dust and furs. Corp. Bill Hardsock reports the crime to Sergt. Alan Baker at the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance. Baker has a dispute with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, over plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is alone, awaiting the return of her father.

Through the whole long winter Joyce had been slowly realizing that her return to this northern Waterways country had been a terrible mistake. Once she had been away, free of it all. With the true instinct of colonial Britons for their children, her dad and mother had sent her out to school, a solid old English institution in Ontario. When she finished, she quickly hunted up a job for herself, a place with a government bureau, where her knowledge of Indian languages and customs made her uniquely valuable in preparing pamphlets for the far northern agencies. Independent, earning a good salary, with friends and sports and work she liked, she had given up all of it and returned to this isolated fur post on a sub-Arctic river.

Her mother had died, and her father, alone, crushed by the relentless competition of big companies out to "get" him, had morally gone to pieces. Alan in his letters had written her the sorry facts. Her duty, clear as a call, had spoken to her, "If you return, you may be able to stop that; you may help Dad back to where he was." And she had come.

She knew that other folk were surprised at her loyalty, and thought her foolish, and were shrugging shoulders at the hopelessness of a mere girl trying to lift Dave MacMillan above the whisky and Indian-woman life he had sunk into. But Joyce did not consider it foolish, and she could see no great loyalty about it. Whatever his demoralization now, her father had been the best of fathers to her. Looking at him not as a father but as a man, she could realize, in her own womanhood, that he had been the best of husbands to her mother. She felt it was her mother's death, the insoluble tragedy of God withdrawing his hand, which really had broken sturdy Dave MacMillan.

And Joyce was beginning to realize, as the slow months passed, that her patient battle was anything but futile. Slowly, so slowly that only she herself could see it, she was winning her struggle, she was lifting her father out of his bewildered demoralization. If only she were given another season or two, she could salvage his life.

Down in Ontario, debating what path to take, Joyce had thought of asking her dad to come and live with her. From a money standpoint, considering her good salary, that was the sensible thing to do. But she had chosen to return here. At that time she had not fully realized the secret and irresistible reason of her return. If anyone had told her that reason, she would have denied it hotly. But now, face to face with a personal tragedy which forced her to disillusioned thinking, she looked into her heart and saw there the real motive. It was Alan Baker who had drawn her. By degrees unknown, unperceived by her, girlhood friendship had deepened into love.

She had come back to be near Alan Baker. She had come back in the passionate hope that he and she would marry.

There had been an unspoken understanding between herself and Alan that when the road ahead was a little clearer for both of them, they would be married. And then Elizabeth had come. . . . Alan's engagement to Elizabeth had been a dazing, unexpected blow. When Bill, coming past on patrol, awkwardly blurted out the news of it, she had not believed. It took days of racked wanderings in the woods, weeks of helpless anguish tossing, before the spirited strength and courage that were so great a part of Joyce, fought up out, and she steadied herself and began to believe.

But even now she did not fully accept. That engagement seemed strange to her. Though she knew nothing of Alan's secret motives, she did feel there was something behind it which Alan had told no one. It seemed to her, from what she had observed, that Alan had no passionate affection for Elizabeth.

Month after month Joyce had waited for word of his marriage. The word had not come. She wondered. . . . What was causing this long delay? She could only guess at possibilities, but during the lengthening months the belief had been born in her that something had arisen as a barrier to the marriage and that the engagement might be broken off.

When she thought of all these things and remembered how intimate and comradely she and Alan had been to one another, Joyce could not kill her lingering hope. As she stood there on the planking now, awaiting the patrol, with her heart thumping at the prospect of seeing Alan and talking to him once more, she knew that tonight she would come a little closer to discovering whether her wild guesses were truth or only wishful hoping.

Down the river a great yellow eye blinked through the trees. Swinging around a bend, it played up across the water. In a few moments more it picked her out, there on the landing; and Joyce stood bathed in the blinding shaft of the launch's searchlight. The craft came on and on until by shielding her eyes she distinguished its outline and caught the glitter of rifle steel.

The engine ceased. Skillfully, gently, the launch nosed in toward the landing. A figure stepped past the searchlight and stood holding the painter on the half-deck of the bow; and Joyce knew then, her eyes seeing only him, that Alan Baker led this patrol.

Joyce tried to welcome him calmly, but in that moment she was thankful for the deep twilight, and she stepped back a little, where the shadows of a low-sweeping balsam veiled her face. About the only rag of pride left to her was the fact that Alan Baker did not know or remotely guess her heart toward him.

With his first question, after their warm handclasp, he asked her:

"Has anybody passed here lately, Joyce?"

"Not that I've seen. Nobody in the last four days."

"But surely they did! Were you here all day?"

Joyce noticed then a tautness in his voice, and she saw he had brought five men with him on this patrol. It was no routine work, no ordinary pursuit, this time.

She answered: "I was out hunting this morning, and I slept a couple hours this afternoon. They might have passed then. But they couldn't have gone by while I was here and awake."

"What time were you asleep this afternoon, Joyce?"

"I can't exactly. . . our clock isn't. . . Probably from about four till six."

Alan half-turned to Hardsock. "Bill, you heard what Joyce said? They couldn't have reached here this morning, so they must have passed here after four. We're nearer up with them than I figured. We'd better stay here till the deep dark breaks. At night this way we can't sight those men on ahead. They'd hear the launch coming and dodge aside into some creek."

He turned again to her. "If it won't be imposing, Joyce, will you give us a bite to eat and some coffee?"

Imposing—an hour of his company, setting a meal for him, learning the truth of his relations with Elizabeth! But she merely nodded and invited the patrol up to the trading store.

Ahead of the men the two of them went up the path together, Alan shielding her from the brush overgrowing the trail; and as they went he told her briefly of the robbery, the murder, the escape up the Alooska.

The news fairly stunned Joyce, as it had him when Bill reported. And with her there was an added reason, a reason that struck her with sudden fear. Before Alan finished, she was grasping his arm in trembling fright. "My dad! He's on northeast, up river—up there somewhere! He's bringing down some furs. Alan! what if he runs into these men?"

"Good Lord!" Alan breathed to himself. "If they meet Dave. . . They're not the kind to let anybody go past alive and report their whereabouts!"

For Joyce's sake he tried to lie convincingly. "They may not meet him at all, Joyce. And if they do, why, they'd hardly shoot a man down wantonly. If for no other reason, it doesn't pay. They've got charges enough against them as it is. And they won't rob him; their canoes are riding heavy now."

He saw that his lie succeeded with Joyce, for she began questioning him about the details of the robbery, wondering who these six strangers could be, and giving him some valuable information about the water stages on up the Alooska.

They went on back to the kitchen, and Joyce set about getting a meal for six tired hungry men. As he set extra plates and cups on the table, Alan asked himself:

"Isn't she wondering why I haven't been here for so long? I'd think she would wonder at least why I stopped helping her about Dave. But she hasn't mentioned it; she must not have missed my help much. It was pretty shabby of me to stop like that, even if. . ."

He recalled how Elizabeth, jealous of the comradeship between him and Joyce, had asked him to let Bill attend to any patrol work up the Big Alooska. Elizabeth's references to "that MacMillan girl" had antagonized him at times. They seemed positively cruel, considering the hard lines Joyce was in.

A question from the girl broke into his thoughts.

"When are you and Elizabeth going to be married, Alan?"

Her question, or rather the way she asked it, hurt Alan, for some reason he could not exactly word. Her voice was so very casual, as though she had not even a friend's interest in his marriage. Could it be possible that he and Joyce, once so intimate and so near to each other that they had spoken of children and a life together, were now casually discussing his marriage to another girl?

He said, "We haven't—we're—we don't exactly know yet."

There was a pause. A swift color had flown into Joyce's cheeks; a little feverishly she was repeating to herself those surprising words: "He doesn't know yet, he doesn't know yet! Does that mean—mean he's doubtful if it will ever be?"

"But it'll be this summer, I suppose," she questioned, poking at the stove and still not looking at Alan.

"I don't know. Yes, I guess so, Joyce." Then he explained reluctantly, "Elizabeth wants me to get out of the Mounted."

Joyce gasped. Out of the Mounted—she could not imagine such a thing. The work was a part of Alan. What would he do without it? And what would Fort Endurance do without him?

She said: "But Alan! What would you turn to? The Mounted has been your work—"

"Well, I've got the offer of a job down in Ontario. It's pretty good, as far as money goes. And Elizabeth would like it there. I haven't exactly decided. It's a big step to take."

Those few reluctant sentences were a revelation to Joyce, like a white light beating upon something which had been dark to her. Alan didn't want to go! Elizabeth was trying to force him. She wanted to live in a city; she wanted the things which that salary would bring her; she was using Alan to get what she wanted. But she and Alan were not of one mind! If he really loved her, deeply and passionately, would he be so reluctant, would he allow anything on earth to come between them?

Joyce dared not ask him anything further then; he might add a word that would destroy this new-born hope. But a hundred thoughts were running wild through her. . . . "Suppose he doesn't yield to Elizabeth! Suppose he won't go! Then she won't marry him! She'll throw him over for Haskell; that's what she'll surely do. Bill says she and Haskell are together half the time Alan's away from Endurance. Isn't that the reason?—she's not sure of Alan yielding; and if she can't have her way with him she'd like to be an inspector's wife!"

With swift unerring insight Joyce saw the all-crucial question: Would Alan get out of the Mounted? She was still uncertain what he truly felt for Elizabeth, but from his own lips she had learned one thing which an hour ago she had scarcely dared hope could be true. The marriage was not sure; it might never be!

In her abjectness she whispered to herself: "I don't care if he does like her. I don't, I don't care! If she throws him over, then we'll be friends again, then he'll come here to me again; and then—after that. . ."

Light Year Illustrates Immensity of Creation

Concerning the dateless history of creation, I need to invoke but one illustration. Astronomy, by its marvelous optics, is now able to descry in the depths of space material systems whose rays require at least a million light years to reach our earth. What is a light year? Remember, a ray of light moves at the amazing rate of 186,300 miles in every second of time. Now, multiply the seconds into minutes and days until you reach a full year of seconds, then you have a light year. Then think, if you can, that it has taken a million of such years for the light of some discovered systems to reach our earth. But still the real fact to remember is that the light in which we see these far-distant worlds is itself a million years old. We do not see these realms as they are today, but as they were a million years ago. And yet this is but a mere fraction of an hour in those infinitely far-flung ages which might take us back to the beginnings of creation.—George Preston Mains.

Destructive Earthquake

The town of Napier, a resort of New Zealand, was destroyed by a severe earthquake lasting almost three minutes on February 3, 1931. A cliff some 300 feet high slid into the sea, carrying with it private dwellings, burying the general hospital and raising the harbor bottom.

STAGE COACH TALES

By E. C. TAYLOR

Breaking Up a Whig Parade

GEORGE FISHER was one of the best known stage coach drivers on the old National pike in the 1840's. He was noted for his manipulation of fiery steeds.

There was a fractious team at Claysville, Pa., that was the terror of all the drivers on that section of the road. It had "run off" once, killing one passenger and injuring several, on Caldwell's hill, seven miles west of Washington, Pa.

Every driver who had been given the team had despaired of taming these fiery horses, so Fisher was sent for. He had been driving out of Washington, Pa., and after taking charge of the team he soon had it under control. He drove it many years without an accident.

Fisher was driving this team in 1844, during the celebrated political contest between James K. Polk and Henry Clay, opposing candidates for the Presidency. Fisher was an ardent supporter of Polk, and bitter in his enmity toward the Whigs.

One day in 1844 there was a large mass meeting of Whigs in Washington, Pa. An "extra" coach, specially chartered, passed over the road going west, with Fisher at the reins, going from Claysville to Roney's Point.

There was a delay just beyond the state line of West Virginia. A delegation of Whigs, flaunting banners and with music blaring, were en route from West Alexander to Washington to attend the mass meeting.

On their return home in the evening, while they were parading along the National pike, with banners flying and bands playing, they were overhauled by George Fisher and his coach.

Fisher drove his teams, one of which was the famous "unbroken" span he had mastered years before, and his coach into the Whig procession at several points. Buggies were damaged, carriages and light wagons broken, and several persons were injured.

Colin Wilson, a prominent citizen of Washington, Pa., was one of the injured. The town of Washington demanded that Fisher be held to account for his action, and the resultant investigation stirred that section of the country as nothing else had done for years.

Fisher explained that the "bad" team he was driving became frightened when it encountered the banners and the music. He claimed that the breaking up of the Whig procession was unintentional, was just an accident.

The reputation of his team was well known, especially in the vicinity of Washington, Pa., and his explanation served as a plausible excuse. The fame of the team saved Fisher from prosecution and probable severe punishment.

But the Whigs of that neighborhood went to their graves solemnly believing that Fisher did it on purpose.

Fisher in later years would not discuss the incident, but he intimated to his many friends that the team must have known the paraders were Whigs, and had the same feeling toward them that he had.

The same team, just before Fisher took the reins, had made a reputation as "killers." One man had been killed and several injured in a mad dash of the horses.

A few days before Fisher took charge of the recalcitrant team, the horses dashed down the long hill from the locust tree at Caldwell's tavern, to Wickert's bridge.

A Mr. Moses—He never was identified further—was seriously injured; the driver was severely hurt and three passengers were injured.

Mr. Moses, a Kentucky merchant, suffered a badly crushed leg. He died two days later in the hospital at Washington, Pa.

The driver of the stage coach was so seriously injured that he did not recover until the next spring. He spent the winter recuperating at the Caldwell tavern.

The other passengers in the coach were not injured.

Lightning and Autos

The bureau of standards says that the fact that automobiles are supported on rubber tires would probably have no appreciable effect on the probability of the automobiles being struck by lightning. Likewise, the wetting of the automobile by rain would probably produce no appreciable effect. The inclosure effected by the automobile would probably afford some degree of protection to persons within. Persons within a conducting inclosure are safe against lightning. The automobile body, although the inclosure is in a large measure effected by glass, approaches this condition.

First English Letter

Sir John Pelham is stated to have been the first to receive a private letter written in the English language. It was sent by his wife in 1390. Latin was the language in which letters and communications of every kind were written to the time of the accession of Edward I. French continued to predominate as the language of correspondence until the reign of Edward III. An act of parliament then provided that the English language should in future be the language of legislation, and the French language, which had been spoken since the conquest, ceased to be used.

"Thriller" of Long Ago

Outdone by Invention

"Way back in their boyhood reading, illicit reading, with the yellow-back in the big geography, and the teacher not too vigilant, some men who are gray-haired now can recall a Beadle thriller with the title "Red Star, the Spirit of the Lake."

A white pioneer has had all his family murdered by the Indians. He escapes to an island and finds a cave. In that cave there is a stone tomahawk with the striking edge so carved as to form a star, and leave that mark on the victim.

Also there are two very light and narrow cedar canoes, with straps for the feet. The pioneer finds that in these he can walk the water of the lake. Every night he goes out. Every morning some redskin is found dead in the forest with the star mark. Hence "Red Star, the Spirit of the Lake."

Red Star walked on quiet water. But now the news tells us that Karl Naumesnik, of Styria, has eclipsed the Beadle hero. Facing rather heavy seas, he has actually walked the water from Cape Gris Nez to Dover on "water skis." The distance is about twenty miles. The water skis of 1931 are clearly superior to the strapped-on cedar canoes of fancy, three-quarters of a century ago. And once more it has been proved that truth is stranger than fiction.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Russian Leaders Never

Confident of Success

"What makes you think that the Bolshevik will be unable to retain their power longer than six months?" I asked Lenin as I sat in his office one day during the Brest-Litovsk negotiations of 1917.

Just six weeks after the Bolshevik revolution he had delivered a speech in which he said: "Six months from now, when we all shall be hanged. . . and to this I had taken exception."

As an eyewitness of the birth of the present regime in Russia, it has been clear to me from this and other incidents that its leaders came into power by accident and are still controlling the fate of 150,000,000 people by sheer lack of opposition.

During my interviews with Lenin in my capacity of American newspaper man, I observed that he could not see a single reason why the world should not adopt the gospel of revolution. He was a dreamer who built himself a world of his own.

Stalin also, was uncertain of himself at that time. For hours I heard him discuss means of providing newspapers in the early days of the cause. The idea of confiscating the established press never entered his mind then, though only a month later the bourgeois press was forced to discontinue publication and its plants were socialized.

The man who now devises five-year plans, who knows exactly where the world will be in the next few years, and who envisions the complete success of his experiments, could not see a month ahead in the early days of his power.—K. J. Ledoc in Current History.

Game Subjects of Movies

Moving picture films of game subjects are being distributed by the Pennsylvania game commission to theaters within the state. One of earliest releases presented phases of ringneck pheasant propagation and hunting. Views were presented of bird dogs pointing the birds, the approach of the hunter, the flush, the kill and the retrieve, and other pictures of breeding the dogs on the state farms were included.

Many Fish Eggs

In order to ascertain definitely the number of fish eggs to be expected from a given number of fish held for propagation, the Montana state fish and game department experts made an actual count, finding 984,312 eggs in 539 female native cut-throat trout, or an average of 1,830 eggs per trout. The famed Montana grayling yielded an average of 12,683 eggs.

"I'M going, anyway"

If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Aspirin will always enable you to carry on in comfort. Take enough to assure your complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does not upset the stomach. It does nothing but stop the pain.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. A throat sore you can hardly swallow is made comfortable with one good gargle made from these tablets. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking a few of these remarkable tablets. So are the little nagging aches that bring fatigue and "nerves" by day, or a sleepless night.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets cost so very little after all, that it doesn't pay to experiment with imitations!

CHURCH OKES BOXING TOURNNEY

Huge Stadium Card Dec. 4 Seen As Means to Combat False Standards.

CHICAGO.—Boxing, as a means for combating the influences of present-day indifference, and the false standards of soft living and easy money as reflected by modern literature and other sources glorifying the gang leader and social outlaws, has been formally embraced here by the Catholic Youth Organization, as part of its social service program.

The occasion marks the first time that any accredited Catholic organization in this country has adopted boxing as a group function, with full permission of Church authorities. This was pointed out today by Rev. Gerald P. Scanlan, director of the Catholic Youth Organization, under whose auspices a monster amateur boxing tournament will reach its climax with finals and semi-finals bouts in the Chicago Stadium on the night of December 4.

A total of 1,612 boys, representing 403 parishes in the six counties of Cook, Lake, Will, Grundy, Du Page and Kane have been entered for the tourney, which is classed by sporting authorities as the biggest and most spectacular athletic demonstration ever staged in the Middle West.

Section and district preliminary and quarter-final bouts are now being held throughout the archdiocese in such cities as Chicago Heights, Blue Island, Joliet, Downers Grove, Berwyn and Waukegan.

Cardinal Mundelein and Bishop B. J. Sheil have lent their unqualified consent and approval to the tournament which is being watched throughout the entire Catholic world with intense interest, because it marks a unique experiment in the training and molding of youth.

As explained by Father Scanlan, the Catholic Youth Organization proposes to elevate boxing to a high moral and social plane as a fitting means for developing self-restraint, courage and manly qualities among modern young men.

Milk Train Makes Last Trip

By Sam Fulton
 Train Baggage, Chicago

We leave Joliet, Ill., with twenty cans of milk and as the train approaches the Pilcher milk platform, the familiar sight of four or five farmers' wagons meets the eye. With a cheery greeting, whether it be fair or foul, warm or cold, they bend to the task of loading as quickly as possible in order not to delay the train in which they are so much interested, realizing as they do that their ready money in the growing season while waiting for their crops to mature and their spending money through the winter months, comes from the milk sold upon arrival of the train at the great metropolis nearby. The same performance is repeated at Gougar, Bird's Bridge, New Lenox, Gillett's, Hickory Grove, Mokena, Summit, and Tinley Park, until upon arrival at the milk platform at Englewood, frequently 800 cans are unloaded from the two baggage cars and the baggage end of the combination smoker making up part of the regular consist of this train. This is speaking of thirty-three years ago.

When the train was established to provide a service that would greatly benefit the territory, the roads were little more than tracks simply cut through a heavy timbered section. In wet weather, four horses were the usual thing on each of these wagons to pull them to the milk platform. The wagons were merely rough box.

The country roundabout was undeveloped and the farmers were pioneers, staking their all upon the promise the soil held for them.

The years have brought fulfillment. Although the milk train made its last run on September 26, in numbers unthought of when it was established, suburban trains are carrying passengers to the great city.

The paved roads have set up the land giving the country a finished aspect and though motor trucks are moving the milk and the produce, the railroad is still delivering from afar orders which divide between requirements and luxuries.

In the march of progress, it may become difficult to visualize the assistance which the railroad gave to the farmers dressed in homespun, but nevertheless, it is another case to illustrate that without the railroads the prosperity which has come to the people and to the communities served would have been impossible.

In this case, the railroad through its representatives worked hard in the interest of the farmers. The platform was constructed at Englewood and a siding built where the train could deliver direct to milk dealers. It was part of my duty to see to it that the milk was turned over to only responsible dealers, in order that the farmers would have prompt payment.

Although farmers have found the motor truck more adaptable in their needs for the movement of milk on short haul such as this, the railroad still handles the bulk of such traffic where distances are greater.

This traffic is lost but the company still has work for me and we go ahead with the confidence that as the territory grows and prospers, the Rock Island stands ready to meet the changing and growing transportation requirements.

Mokena School Notes

MOKENA GRADE SCHOOL

On Friday evening the Mokena grade school was defeated 50-21 by the fast grade team of Chaney school. The game was not as exciting as the game the week before at Mokena. Mokena played a hard luck game this time. Whether it was due to the strange floor or the fact that they just couldnot score is hard to say. Mokena Grade School Team had only five players so that they could not have much to pick from. One of the Mokena grade school players had four fouls on him but Chaney showed their good sportsmanship and left the Mokena player in the game instead of taking him out.

MOKENA HIGH SCHOOL GAME

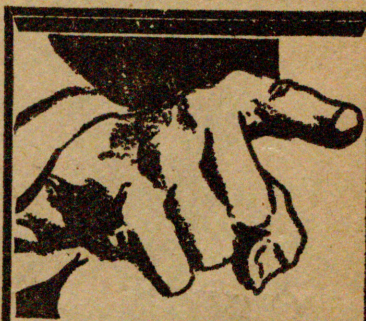

The Mokena High School was very interesting and exciting but they seemed to have hard luck also for the ball would not go into the basket. The Mokena High School score was closer than that of the grade schools and they were defeated 24 to 19. The Mokena High School Team are hoping for a better showing when they meet the Chaney team on their own floor.

MOKENA GIRLS' GRADE SCHOOL GAME

The Mokena Girls Grade School Team felt very proud that they had won their game; thus not losing all three of the games that night to Chaney. They defeated Chaney Grade School Girls 10-4. The Mokena school girls played a good game and they all fought it to the end when they conquered.

Lions Donate Half Of Dance Proceeds To Tinley School

The dance sponsored by the Tinley Park Lions Club in the new school auditorium last Wednesday night was a decided success, over four hundred dance tickets being sold.  SIMPLICITY has always been a virtue, a fact that is especially true of popular songs. When a composer gets too fancy, he may impress his friends, but he'll never have the country singing his melodies.

All of which is a way of patting the composers of "I Don't Know Why" on the back. Roy Turk wrote the lyric and Fred E. Ahlert wrote the music and they have turned out a real hit.

Here's a song that has a beautiful, simple, plaintive refrain. It is unaffected and easy to understand. And the lyric has just that appealing quality so necessary for a successful song.

Turk and Ahlert are another song writing team that turns out hits consistently. I have worked with them.
